

TelluBase Data Specification

TelluBase is the external information hub every company and organization needs. It is the only database in world that breaks down consumer groups by income and age level across countries, subnational divisions, cities, and years.

This unique database allows you to understand and quantify consumer economics at a granular level beyond what is possible today.

With TelluBase your perspective on the world will change forever. It is truly the world as no one has seen it before.

TelluBase was developed from more than 30 years of effort to build the complexity for this revolutionary information.

This document outlines data series and geographic scope that is included in the hub.

DATA SERIES

Population

Total number of people in a country, subdivision or city.

Disposable Income

Disposable income represents total personal income after taxes. On a per capita basis, this can be considered the amount of money that individuals have available for spending and is the most important metric for understanding consumer bases. Disposable income is provided in local currency, USD or Purchasing Power Parity dollars (PPP$) in both current terms and constant 2015 terms.

GDP

Gross Domestic Product (GDP) represents the total value of the final goods and services produced within a country, subdivision or city. GDP is provided in local currency, USD or Purchasing Power Parity dollars (PPP$) in both current terms and constant 2015 terms.

Income Level Standards

Income Level Standards (ILS) are Tellusant's globally harmonized income brackets that make it easy to directly compare the affluence of populations across different countries. ILS brackets breakdown the population of a country, subdivision or city into 7 groups based upon their level of income.

Age Fractiles

Age fractiles split the population of a country, subdivision or city into 4 age groups: 0-17, 18-34, 34-55 and 55 or older. This granularity allows you to focus on the age groups most important to your business.

Age x Income

Age x Income groupings segment the population by both age and income level. Incomes are represented as either Low, Middle or High which represents a simplified version of our Income Level Standards:

Low = ILS1 + ILS2; Middle = ILS3 + ILS4 + ILS5; High = ILS6 + ILS7

Exchange Rates

Exchange rates show the conversion ratios between any two currencies, both historically and into the future.
